- Boerhavia boissieri Heimerl apud Vierhapper
- Boerhavia plumbaginea var. viscosa Boiss.
- Boerhavia verticillata auct. non Poir.: Hook. f.
- Commicarpus stellatus sensu F.G. Bhopal & M. N. Choudhri

A decumbent to straggling perennial. Stein and branches glabrous. Leaves ovate, subcordate to suborbiculate, 2-6 x 1-6 cm, obtuse, retuse or cuspidate, often repand or sinuate, fleshy; petiole 0.7-2 cm long. Flowers 3-5 per node, c. 6.5 mm long, in superposed umbels, campanulate. Involucral bracts 2-3 mm long, linear-lanceolate, puberulous, deciduous. Pedicel 0.5-1.2 cm long, slender. Perianth pink, violet or white, 2.5-4 mm long, lower part 1.5 mm long, raphides present. Stamens (2-)3, sub-exserted; filament 5-5.5 mm long, slender. Ovary less than 1 mm long, subglobose to ovoid; style as long as or longer than the filaments; stigma capitate. Anthocarp 5-7 mm long, turbinate, nodding, with a ring of large wart-like glands around the apex.

Fl. per.: Sept.-Oct. but earlier in the southern areas.

Type: Baluchistan: Chuttok, S. Kalat, 1350 m, Stocks s.n. (K).

Distribution: Pakistan, India and S. Iran.

An undershrub found in the plains and sandy areas up to 700 m. Closely related to Commicarpus verticillatus (Poir.) Standl. (syn. Boerhavia verticillata Poir.), from which it differs according to Heimerl (l.c.347) in the “flowers 5-7 mm long in verticils of 4-7; stamens rarely more than 3”.

A genus of richly branched annual herbs up to ca 25 cm high, densely covered with appressed hairs with a discoid base. Lowest branches opposite. Leaves simple, the lowest pairs opposite, then alternate. Flowers produced abundantly along almost the whole length of the branches, the first flowers of the young shoots develop in the axil of the bifurcating stems. Bracts leaflike. Calyx 5-lobed, reaching beyond the corolla, with the lobes somewhat to distinctly unequal in size, somewhat enlarged in fruit, the base becoming subglobose with the tips of the lobes leaning together; lobes with hyaline margins. Corolla usually 5-lobed, actinomorphic, subcylindrical. Pollen 3-aperturate (colpate or colporate), round or subprolate in equatorial view, round or rounded triangular in polar view with the apertures situated in the corners when rounded triangular. Stigmas 2, terminal, subglobose. Nutlets beige, ovoid with a conoidal to somewhat rostrate acute apex, densely verrucose, usually 4 developing.
A genus of one species occurring on the Canary Islands, in northern Africa, and Arabia.
